OUR VISION

This is Holy Week

One of the favourite hymns of this season is “When I survey the wondrous Cross”, which ends with the lines: “Love so amazing, so divine demands my soul, my life, my all.”

“The Lutheran Hymnal Handbook includes this little narrative about the hymn “When I Survey the Wondrous Cross:” “With regard to the practical application of the final stanza, Father Ignatius of St. Edmund’s Church in London is reported to have blurted to his congregation: ‘Well, I’m surprised to hear you sing that. Do you know that altogether you put only fifteen shillings in the collection bag this morning?’”

While Watts might not have been talking explicitly about money in the last line of his text, there is the expectation that we dedicate ourselves entirely to God, for God demands not just a piece of who we are, but “our soul, our life, our all.” This can be an incredibly difficult line to sing with any sense of honesty. Devotional author Jerry Jenkins writes in his book Hymns for Personal Devotions, “Perhaps it’s the distance between where Watts encourages me to be and where I truly am that makes this hymn so hard to sing. It’s a lofty and worthy spiritual goal to say that ‘Love so amazing, so divine, demands my soul, my life, my all,’ but how short I fall!” (Jenkins, 44). And so as we sing this hymn of love and awe, we must sing it with a prayer in our hearts, asking God to enable us each day to live our life wholly for him.”

The question of how we give our “all” to Jesus is one which most of us living in the secular world find a constant struggle, but the week we call “holy” might be a good place to re-examine what we mean when we sing that line.

[There is a legend that one Sunday afternoon the young Isaac Watts complained about the deplorably poor quality of hymns sung at that time (around 1700), to which the pastor of his church responded: “I’d like to see you do better.” Isaac went up to his room, and a few hours later returned with his first hymn, in the following years wrote over 600 more, including three in our hymn book.]

This week we can, in a particular way live with Jesus. On Palm Sunday we begin the Mass in the hall, which for us represents the Mount of Olives, and we process from there to Jerusalem as Jesus did on the first Palm Sunday.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Jesus is to be found in Jerusalem frequently in the Temple. We can read about the events of these days in Matthew 21:18 - 26:14, Mark 11:12 - 14:9, Luke 19:47 - 22:6 and John 12:20-50.

We get our name for Thursday from the special teaching that Jesus gave during the Last Supper: “A new commandment I give you; that you love one another” (John 14:34). The Latin for ‘commandment’ is ‘mandatum’, from which we get the word ‘Maundy’.

But Maundy Thursday has much more than just that — it is the day of the institution of the Eucharist and the day when priests renew their commitment to service in the Church. It is the day when the Sacred Chrism and the other Holy Oils are blessed. There is a special Mass at the Cathedral at 11.00 on Thursday morning and the Mass of the Lord’s Supper at 7.00 in the evening at St Gregory’s. At the end of the evening Mass we re-trace our footsteps on the previous Sunday to return to the Mount of Olives and to Gethsemane (in the hall) to “watch and pray” (Mark 14:38) with Jesus. “Could you not watch with me one hour?” (Mark 14:37)

However, the way in which each one of us truly obeys Christ’s New Commandment is one which needs to be worked out day by day in our Christian life. The works of mercy, as recounted in the story of the Last Judgement (Matthew 25:35-36) might be a good start. There is also a collection at the evening Mass which is for the charitable work of the Church in our own parish.

We call Friday “Good”. It is the day on which the infinite love of God was shown to its full depth — it is the day on which Jesus died so that we may have eternal life. It is the day on which God did the greatest good for humanity in surrendering the life of Jesus for us.

If we are to give our “all” to Jesus, this week would be a good time to make it a reality, sharing in the prayers of the Church in this week and following the life of Jesus.

The climax comes on Saturday evening with the Easter Vigil Mass, with baptisms and reception into the Church. This is the pivot of the Christian Year, the centre-point of our worship. For forty days we have been preparing for it and we shall celebrate it for the next fifty days. But the joy of Easter fills the entire year; it makes sense of life and of death and is the foundation of our faith. We are called to share that joy — one way would be to bring a friend to Alpha. There is a beautiful poetic pairing in the Latin which is lost in translation: “Carnem sumere” and “Cruce[m] subire”. This both links and contrasts “take flesh” and “submit to the cross”

This linking is a direct reference to the second reading at today’s Mass from the letter to the Philippians (2:6-11)

Almighty ever-living God, who as an example of humility for the human race to follow caused our Saviour to take flesh and submit to the cross, graciously grant that we may heed his lesson of patient suffering and so merit a share in his Resurrection

Through our Lord Jesus Christ, your Son who lives and reigns with you in the unity of the Holy Spirit, one God, for ever and ever. Amen.

The reading speaks of the humility of Christ, and we pray that we may learn from him the lesson of patient suffering. However, the reading continues to speak of God raising Jesus high, and giving him the name above all names. Our prayer asks that we may be found worthy to have a share in this glory, the glory of the Resurrection. Our journey through Lent has brought us to the beginning of Holy Week. May we share in the joy of Easter.

Scripture Readings 14th April 2019, Palm Sunday Year C

In this suffering servant song Isaiah expresses the despondency of an exiled people apparently deserted by their God. But it is they who have fallen away. God has not gone back on his promise to them, and he will come to their help. But first they must turn back to him and put all their trust in him, in spite of their sufferings.

On the Cross Jesus uttered the first words of Psalm 22, which goes on to reflect his suffering. But rather than a cry of despair, the psalm expresses Jesus' complete confidence in his Father and praises the redemption bought by his Cross.

Paul pleaded for unity among the Philippians, divided by rivalry and personal vanity. He urged them to “do nothing out of selfishness or out of vainglory; rather humbly regard others as Second Isaiah describes the new Exodus, the return from exile in more important than yourselves”. Unlike Adam, Jesus did not try to be equal to God. Instead his crucifixion gives us the supreme example of unselfish love. Therefore he was raised to new life, as also will be those who follow his example.

Luke says that at the Last Supper Jesus declares he will “not drink wine until the kingdom of God comes”. Mark and John say that immediately before he died Jesus was given wine to drink from a sponge, then saying “It is finished”.

Psalm Response:

My God, my God,
why have you forsaken me?

(Isaiah 50:4-7; Psalm 21(22) ;Phil 2:6-11; Luke 22:14-23:56)

March 25th 2020 — England re-consecrated as the Dowry of Mary

The recent visit to our Cathedral of the statue of Our Lady of Walsingham as part of the Dowry Tour is a preparation for the re-consecration of this country under its ancient title of “Mary’s Dowry”.

This is part of the total strategy of the New Evangelisation. What, you may ask is ‘new’ about reviving the ancient title of the Dowry of Mary? The “New Evangelisation” is not an evangelisation to a “new Gospel” — the Good News of Christ is always new and always the same. It speaks fundamentally about God’s love for us and how God wishes us to be fully reconciled to him. It speaks of how death has been conquered and how sins can be forgiven. It speaks of how God is calling us to a special relationship with him, and how we can live in such a way as to make the world a better place. It speaks of how God uses people to achieve his purpose on earth, and no one more so than the girl of Nazareth who we know as Our Lady, the Mother of God.

To help us better understand the place of Our Lady is God’s great plan of salvation, we are all invited to take part in the film series: “Mary A Biblical walk the Blessed Mother” which will be at the Institute in Great Billing on Mondays at 1.00 pm starting on 13th May

A Powerful Study on the Blessed Mother Begins on 13th May at the Institute, Great Billing

CAFOD update on Cyclone Idai

Thanks to the generosity of the Catholic community, our church network responded immediately to the devastating effects of Cyclone Idai. Getting people to safety and providing them with food, clean water and shelter.

We are so grateful to people like you for remembering your sisters and brothers in Zimbabwe, Mozambique and Malawi. Over the next few weeks, we will be focusing on four things:

- With over 1,400 reported outbreaks of cholera, we’re providing clean water and soap, as well as advice on the importance of clean food and drink to prevent further spread.
- Many children were separated from their parents. We’re protecting and reuniting them with their relatives.
- Access to rural areas is still challenging due to flooding and damage to bridges and roads. We’re still reaching these people and providing emergency aid.

Going forward, our local partners are moving people, especially women and children into more permanent camps. They will be protected and can start rebuilding their lives.
